In the name of God Amen
Alice Herne

In the name of God Amen I Alice Herne the wife of my late most dear and loving husband Richard Herne sometime Sheriffe and Alderman of London being thorough the goodnes of god at this present in good health of bodie and ability of minde yet rarely waiting for the tyme of my chaunge doe willingly and readily forsake my selfe and all that I possesse to be with Christ the joye of my harte, and the end of my hope And therefore dispose therof as followeth The Obyite good which I enjoye is my soule The which I returne againe to god who gave it, not in that perfection wherein it was created stamped with his owne image ran I returne it but miserable defaced with mine infinite transgressions besides originall Corruption neither yet doe I presume to offer it unto him as it is thus defaced and defiled with sinne and with iniquitie I knowe that not vile and thinge can enter into heauen, but as it is washed and cleansed with the blood of his only begotten Sonne and covered with the white robe of his righteousnes humbly desiringe and stedfastly believing that he will accept therof for his sake who so loved mee as that he gave himselfe a full and perfect ransom for mee, the next to my soule with the earthly vessel of my bodie (with at the tyme of thine dissolucion) I commend to the care and love of my Executors to be decently interred at your discretion nothing doubtinge but that as it was a Companion of the soule here, so it shalbe reunited againe unto the same hereafter, and with the daie of the resurrection though I should destroye my bodie, yet I shall see god in my flesh when both together shall be satisfied with those vntouchable ioyes with my redemption hath purchased for mee and not for mee onlie for all those whoe love his appearinge As for the temporall and worldly goods
